AND YOUR POINT IS ...

Ramblings from the Editorial Staff

Hello and welcome to our first edition of Family and Friends, a new publication serving the gay, lesbian and trans community of Greater Memphis and the Mid-South.

It is our hope that Family and Friends will become a popular publication within our community, offering up-to-date news on area bars, entertainment, medical information and information pertaining to our lifestyles.

Family and Friends will not center itself only around the gay, lesbian and trans community, but instead offer the community a place to find out what's going on here at home.

In an effort to make sure Family and Friends is what you, the reader, wants it to be, we welcome and encourage you to send us your suggestions for story ideas. You can either call us at (901) 682-2669, or e-mail us at FamilyMag@aol.com. Also, feel free to approach us as you see us "out and about."

Recently, we took a trip to St. Louis and what we found there were bars resembling the ones here at home with one exception, everyone was very friendly. Now, that is not to say that we are not friendly here in Memphis, but we should find a way to become even more friendly.

And my point is ... just because you go up to someone and introduce yourself doesn't have to mean you want to date them. It should mean "I want to get to know you."

Our sexual preference shouldn't matter to anyone, but unfortunately it seems to. With this in mind, doesn't it make sense to make friends with people who don't judge you by whom you choose to sleep with?

Wynonna to perform at Sam's Town

"I'm drawn to the people who waltz to a different beat. I've always felt like I didn't belong in the majority, so I have a tendency to go with the minority in spirit because I sense their feeling of not belonging," said country music recording artist Wynonna, who is scheduled to bring her "different beat" to Sam's Town Hotel & Gambling Hall on Sunday, April 26, at 7 p.m.

Wynonna waltzes to a different beat. She communicates with her music, as bluesy, playful, direct and meaningful as she is.

Honesty. Reality. Connecting. Wynonna is about all of this – in her heart, soul, philosophy and, vitally important, in her music. She'll offer up her faults quicker than she'll cite her successes. She's forged her own persona, staked out her own dreams, chased them and, only recently, caught them. She has escaped from a life of spotlights and shadows to a brave new world that she describes as "the other side."

"For the first time in my life, I'm starting to get it and understand that it takes more than just opening my mouth to sing,"

Wynonna continued. "After all these years, I'm so glad to be here and so glad that I'm still surviving and that I'm not whacked out somewhere on a bus to nowhere. I know that I am able to go out on stage and step into that moment of excellence. But I also have an idea of who I am when I'm not on stage, too. I know that I'm a child of God and that I'm not just a chick singer. So the value of what I think of myself has increased."

The new album, The Other Side, paints a fascinating and accurate portrait of the state-of-the-art artist.

"I am on the other side of a lot of things," she noted. "I'm on the other side of loneliness. I'm on the other side of the blues. I'm healthier than I've ever been. I'm on the other side of having done the farewell concert with Mom. I'm on the other side of survivor's guilt. The other side of the fear of success. The revelations album is what you sing when you're going through all that stuff. Death. Marriage. Babies. Changes. It's like ... make a list of all the crap you've done ... I'm amazed I got through it. But this album is like the other side. That song could not be more positive. 'Sit down here with me and I'll tell you about the other side.'"

Comparing Wynonna's remarkable new album to revelations is like comparing spring with winter. It's a spicy, zesty, soft, warm, in-your-face tour de force that makes a cursory nod toward the past and a bold and beautiful charge into the future. "Don't you throw that mojo on me," wails Wynonna on the sixth cut.

"I have found a way to be who I am, and to become even better in the future," she added. "When you have kids, you re-prioritize. You start to bring in your boundaries and realize where you live and who you are and what you're doing. It's a nice change."

"There are still days when I have my moments of insecurity," Wynonna continued. "I don't know if there will ever be an artist who doesn't. But I keep going back to the music, which is where my strength is."

Tickets for Wynonna's April 26 show are $36.50 and $31.50 and may be purchased through the River Palace Arena Box Office, TicketMaster or charged by phone at (901) 525-1515.

TAKE A WALK

WITH

STEVEN BRADFORD

A First-Hand Look at the Trans Community

Memphis doesn't seem to have a clue; after all this is the Bible Belt. Anything different from the norm is perceived as sick. But it didn't use to be that way. In the early 1700 and 1800's, native Americans were documented as what we would label today as transsexuals, transvestites, and crossdressers.

Men, dressed as women, in the Native American society perceived tribe members by their spirit and not their genitalia. And women who wore male-identified clothing went hunting along with the rest of the warriors; hunting for the survival of the tribe.

In many cases, there were several same-sex marriages accepted as heterosexual couples by today's standards. This also held true for civilizations across the continent.

So why is today's society different?

In 1890, a U.S. government agency was reported to have physically forced these "free spirits" to conform to colonial traditions that were deemed "socially acceptable." Some who refused to conform were murdered.

In 1993, a young white transman (female-to-male transsexual), Brandon Teena, was arrested after a minor run in with the law. The police exposed him as a FTM transman and a short time later he was forced to strip at a Christmas party in front of a woman he had dated. He was then kidnapped, beaten and forcibly gang-raped.

Police refused to file charges based on his transsexualism even though Brandon identified his attackers. On New Years Day, Brandon and two other people were found shot to death. Brandon had been stabbed repeatedly. He was 21 years old.

For 16 years now I have lived my life as a man. I, too, am a transman. Do I think today's society is any different? No. I've passed as a male for most of those 16 years but there were times that I didn't.

There was one instance in where I was in a predominantly lesbian club. I was introduced to someone who verbally assaulted me and tried to physically check my genitalia. I saw no one stand up in my defense. I was outraged. I was under the assumption that being in an alternative club meant the people there would have a better understanding of what it is to be different.

This is just not so. I've found over the years that people who are considered "straight" are more understanding of those who have been judged for their sexual preference. This doesn't hold true in all cases but in my experience, it has been.

For those of you who understand what it means to be different and accept others who are different from you, I applaud you. For those who don't, I hope you never experience what Brandon Teena experienced.

REEL TWISTED

By Dick Hunter

Once again, movie fans, Hollywood has churned out a film that is sure to be honored at next year's Golden Raspberry Awards ceremony.

It is Wild Things and, to be honest, I only wanted to see it because advance word snuck out that Kevin Bacon shows us, his, uh, sausage. How appropriate that this film deals mainly with double-crossing because I certainly felt duped.

Without giving away too much of the story, Matt Dillon (a proud graduate of the Brooke Shields School of Acting) stars as Sam Lombardo, a high school counselor accused of raping a female student (played by Denise Richards).

Now, here is the twist: He also is accused by another student (played by Neve Campbell) of the same wrong doing. Obviously he's guilty, right?

With all the tension you'd find in an episode of "Night Court," poor Neve cries on the stand that she was forced to lie by Miss Richards because she is jealous that Matt has been doing the mattress dance with her very rich mom, played by the once-wonderful-but-now-awful Theresa Russell (Black Widow).

In the meantime, Matt has hired a lawyer, Bill Murray (just the kind of smart-ass I'd want if I was accused of a felony), who reaches new dramatic heights since, well, I have to go all the way back to Madonna in Dick Tracy.

In all of this mess, there's Kevin Bacon (totally miscast but he is the producer of the film) as the sheriff who wants to see poor ol' Matt get put in jail.

Now, if you plan on seeing this movie, STOP READING RIGHT NOW because ... (take a deep breath), Matt gets $8 million as a payoff from mom for being accused by her daughter who is having a bi-sexual affair with Matt and Neve (party of three?), proven in the gratuitous sex scene which shows only Miss Richards' firm, supple, perky teen breasts.

But Matt wants all of the money so he kills Neve (no, he doesn't), and all is good in the world until Kevin goes to Miss Richards' house and shoots her dead (yes, he does).

The case is dropped and Matt walks in on Kevin in the shower (don't blink or you'll miss the only good part) who, it turns out, was in cahoots with Matt the entire time so they celebrate by going sailing and Matt kills Kevin who, I'm convinced also was doing the wild thing with Matt (now, that's something I'd pay to see).

But wait. Who is that mysterious blonde on the boat? No, wait, it's Neve with a really bad wig who then kills Matt and all is good in the world because she's got all the money, right?

Wrong! She is partners with Bill Murray, and, and ... that's the end.

"Did I miss something?" you might

Where did the rainbow flag come from?

Gilbert Baker, a San Francisco artist, designed the first Rainbow Flag in 1978. He used the five-striped "Flag of the Race" as his inspiration. He designed the flag with eight stripes: pink, red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, and violet. According to Baker, these colors represented respectfully, sexuality, life, healing, sun, nature, art, harmony, and spirit. The eight stripes were reduced to seven when Baker attempted to have his homemade flag produced commercially; hot pink was not available.

This flag was brought to the gay community's awareness when the San Francisco Pride Parade Committee chose it in 1979. The parade dropped the indigo color from the flag for logistic reasons—they wanted three colors on one side of the street and three on the other side during the parade.

Recognized by the International Congress of Flag Makers, the six-striped flag is seen all over the world today.

The Rainbow Flag reminds us that ours is a diverse community-composed of people with a variety of individual tastes of which we should all be proud.

STRAIGHT UP BUT NOT STRAIGHT

Advice on everything, and we mean EVERYTHING!

Question: I broke up with this guy a few months ago and am now involved in another relationship. My ex-boyfriend wants to meet my new lover and go out with us. Should I allow this sort of friendship?

Answer: Dear Three's too many!

Generally, when a relationship ends it ends. There are some exceptions, but for the most part when its over its over. Foremost, one must consider the reason for the breakup. Obviously if you two are no longer dating there is a significant reason. If that reason was significant enough to end the relationship, why would it not have a negative impact on a friendship between the two of you?

It could be possible that your ex is dealing with some attachment/separation or codependency issues. You would probably be better to tell your ex that your present relationship is just not big enough for the three of you. I would also suggest that you discuss the issue with your present boyfriend. If at the conclusion of the discussion you agree to "hang out" with your ex, be prepared for the consequences that are sure to follow. I can't help but ponder what next? Will the ex want to be more involved that just "hanging out" or is there an end to his desires?

Question: My lover and I have been together for 5 years, and are considering having a baby via artificial insemination. The problem is my lover has expressed a strong preference for a female child, and I have always heard that babies conceived via AI are usually male. Tell me it isn't so.....

Answer: Okay, I have heard this same rumor myself, but to be honest, I was unable to find any research that verified or disproved it. There are supposedly things you can do to increase your chances of having a girl, but there is never any guarantee. I must admit that hearing women insist that they want only a daughter, pisses me off as much as hearing new fathers expressing disappointment if they don't have a son. If you and your lover don't feel you could love a baby boy, and raise him well....then maybe it's better if you postpone your decision for awhile.

Aphrodite plans big show April 26

In what resembled rehearsals for a Broadway production, members of The Mystic Krewe of Aphrodite – Memphis practiced recently at Holy Trinity Community Church for their upcoming variety show.

The variety show is set for Sunday, April 26, at Madison Flame, 1588 Madison Avenue in Midtown. The show will begin at 8:30 p.m. and last approximately an hour and a half to two hours. Proceeds from the show will benefit The Wellness Center.

This year will mark the 20th anniversary of Aphrodite in Memphis. The Mystic Krewe of Aphrodite – Memphis began in 1978, as an organization with six young women who felt a calling to help their community. The women began going door-to-door collecting money for various charities such as the Muscular Dystrophy Association and Le Bonheur Children's Medical Hospital.

Shortly after its inception, the group started entertaining in the form of variety shows at the P.O., a bar then owned by Aphrodite charter member Sharon Wray. The money raised during the shows was given to members of the community who were in need of financial assistance, said Aphrodite Vice President Carol Stockton.

As the times and needs of people changed, and Aphrodite's reputation grew, the sisters realized the needs of the community also were growing. The group began donating its time and money to charities that included The Center for Battered Women With Children, Loving Arms, the Community Center and The Aid to End AIDS Committee, now known as Friends for Life.

In 1993, Aphrodite raised $12,000 for Holy Trinity Community Church's building fund. The group not only raises money to help the community, but also offers its services as needed throughout the community. One such service was the formation of a blood drive, in conjunction with ATEAC, for people living with AIDS, which is still open and always in need of donors.

"We do about two big (variety) shows a year, one in April and one in November, and mini shows throughout the year," Stockton explained. "We also help out wherever we are needed. We have branched out in the community and do other things to help; things like helping out with auctions, car washes, etc."

Although a majority of the funds raised by Aphrodite go to the charities it helps, some of the money, a very small amount, remains in the organization to help meet operational expenses, she added.

Money is raised through the sale of tickets and tips received during the shows.

At the present time, Aphrodite is looking for new members. Any female interested in joining may do so by coming to a meeting at 1:30 p.m. the first Sunday of every month. Meetings are held at Holy Trinity Community Church, 1559 Madison Avenue in Midtown. Potential members will be asked to read the organization's by-laws and fill out an application that will be reviewed by Aphrodite's board of directors. There is a one-time membership fee of $60.

The present board of directors are as follows: Cyndi Rork, president; Stockton, vice president; Terrie Lemke, secretary; Erin Tosh, treasurer; Nita Drew, ball captain, and Kay Hurst, lieutenant ball captain.

Tickets to the April 26 variety show are $3 each and are available at Madison Flame, 1558 Madison Avenue; One More, 2117 Peabody, and Meristem 930 South Cooper. Tickets also will be available at the door.

Friends for Life plan 'Three Men and The Lady'

Friends for Life, the AIDS resource center in Memphis, is gearing up for its Opera (Memphis) in May concert, "Three Men and The Lady," set for Tuesday, May 5.

Michael Ching, the general and artistic director of Opera Memphis, is bringing in many artists who are donating their time and talent for the concert. They include Adam Klein of New York City, tenor; Dale Morehouse of Dallas, baritone; John Dougherty of Martin, Tenn., bass, and Kallen Esperian.

The Memphis Symphony Orchestra's String Quartet and Woodwind Quintet will play during the champagne reception, which will follow the concert.

Tickets for the concert are $100 per person, with $75 being tax deductible.

For tickets and additional information, call Friends for Life at 272-0855.

Okay, so I said at the beginning I wasn't going to giveaway too much of the story, but I LIED. I can do that because it's my column and, besides, you should be thanking me for saving you $6.50 that would be better spent on a couple of beers at Backstreet.

You're welcome. In a nutshell, the acting sucks, the music sucks (big time) and my advice to the producer is this: Kevin, thanks for the wiener shot, but it, like the movie, didn't live up to the hype.

Gather 'round the dinner table to help family, friends living with HIV, AIDS

In an effort to unite our community and to help and support those persons living with HIV or AIDS, Friends for Life, the AIDS resource center in Memphis, hosts two dinners a month appropriately entitled, Feast for Friends.

The bi-monthly event is held at St. John's United Methodist Church, located at the corner of Peabody and Bellevue, and begins at 6 p.m. with dinner served at 6:30 p.m.

The dinners are open to the general public, but are mostly attended by persons living with HIV or AIDS, their friends, caregivers and family.

Although the dinner is free, those persons who are able are asked to make a contribution to offset the expense of the dinners. In addition, the dinners are sponsored by various organizations and individuals in the community.

The next dinner will be held on Monday, April 20, and is being sponsored by Ron McKnight, Ed Bridges and John Nowak.

The remainder of the dinners are scheduled as follows: May 4 and 18, June 1 and 15, July 6 and 20, Aug. 3 and 17, Sept. 7 and 21, Oct. 5 and 19, Nov. 2 and 16 and Dec. 7 and 21.

For additional information, call Friends for Life at 272-0855.
